SILVER CROSS is a national service that provides mobility-challenged individuals with education, information, sales and service for recycled and new accessibility equipment.

Denver, CO (PRWEB) July 15, 2008 -- SILVER CROSS, a national service, providing mobility-challenged individuals with information, sales and service for new and used medical equipment such as home elevators, stair lifts, ceiling lifts and wheelchair lifts, ramps, bathtub lifts and other related products, has opened a new location in a suburb of Denver.

The opening in Denver joins other new sites in about to be opened in Charlotte, Chicago and Edmonton in the next 12 months, and brings the company total to over 100 franchised or affiliated offices. Silver Cross serves 80 percent of the USA and Canada, and has an online presence that defines its scope of products, and offers a database to match customers with the mobility and accessibility products they require.

SILVER CROSS locations are locally owned and operated, leveraging the SILVER CROSS website, database and support resources. The new Denver office is owned by Gary lark, a local resident and veteran in business management.

Gary says, "I have always been involved in businesses that help people. SILVER CROSS allows me to make a real difference in a persons life who is facing a difficult situation. Giving an individual the freedom and independence to stay in their own home is a dream come true to our clients. I don't know of another business that can provide that type of reward to it's owner."

SILVER CROSS offers a lower cost alternative by providing recycled as well as new equipment. They offer an equipment repurchase plan, and accept trade-ins to meet the demand for recycled equipment, providing reconditioning as required. The company also offers service and maintenance contracts. Over 165,000 customers have used SILVER CROSS since its launch in 1993.
